ChoirWorks' 30th anniversary celebrations, Saturday July 18, 12-4pm

- Thanks to those of you who have booked and paid to join in the choir's 30th anniversary celebrations at Naldham House, 33 Felix St.
- If you haven't booked yet, or if you would like to bring along any adult children who grew up with the choir, we have spaces available.
- Please remember you must pay before we can register your booking. Details in p. 2 of the invitation here.
- Arrangements on the day: we haven't finalised the programme yet, and we will let you know as soon as the details are worked out, but there will be some (short!) speeches at the start, and the festivities will conclude with The Parting Glass. Watch this space and listen out at rehearsal for updates.

And finally ...

The first big pop/rock concert I ever went to was by Billy Joel in the 1970s. (Forty years later my son took me to his farewell tour, but that's another story!) And So It Goes has always been one of my favourite songs of his. This Danish choir sang it an arrangement by their director as a farewell to him when he left the choir – very emotional, but absolutely beautiful harmonies.

Have a great week,
